DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Bezick et al (USPN 5,746,656).

Bezick, in FIG. 1, col. 2:38-67, col. 3:1-67, col. 5:1-67, col. 6:11-67 and col. 7:1-67, discloses a game system, the game system having a game program, the system comprising: at least one game controller, each game controller including apparatus permitting a user to generate user input signals, the game controller including a controller display unit, the controller display unit displaying game objects relating to the status of the game program. Bezick, in FIG. 1, col. 2:38-67, col. 3:1-67, col. 5:1-67, col. 6:11-67 and col. 7:1-67, discloses a game hub coupled to each game controller, the game hub receiving user input signals and integrating the user input signals in the game program, the game hub generating game controller display signals and status display signals in accordance with the game program, the game controller display signals being transmitted to the game controller; and a display unit coupled to the game hub, the display unit displaying an image determined by the status display signals. Bezick, in col. 2:38-67, col. 3:1-67, col. 5:1-67 and col. 6:11-67, discloses the game controller display signals provide data to the user of the game controller not available to users of other game controller(s), the data provided by the game controller display signals permit the user to interact with the game program, the game hub and the game controller are remote from each other, a method of implementing a game program, the method comprising: displaying a different set of image objects to each player interacting with the game, objects includes display the image objects on a game controller display unit associated with a game controller and further including interacting with the game program by the player based on the display of the image objects. Bezick, in FIGS. 1-4, col. 2:38-67, col. 3:1-67, col. 5:1-67, col. 6:11-67, col. 7:15-67 and col. 8:1-67, discloses at least one player is remote from the game program, at least one signal input device for generating signals interacting with a game program; and a game controller display unit for displaying images results from game controller display signals generated in response to the game program. Bezick, in FIGS. 1-4, col. 2:38-67, col. 3:1-67, col. 5:1-67, col. 6:11-67, col. 7:15-67, col. 8:1-67 and col. 9:25-67, discloses the game controller display signals generated by the game program are specific to the game controller display unit, the images displayed by the game controller display unit permit a user to interact with the game program, the game apparatus includes a game hub coupled to the game controller and a display unit coupled to the game hub, the game program being executed in the game hub, and the game hub and the game controller are coupled by electro-magnetic transmissions.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 07/27/2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The Applicant argues that Bezick does not disclose any indication of bi-lateral communication between the terminals and the analog of the game hub. The Examiner respectfully disagrees. Bezick discloses, in col. 7:39-45, the remote computer is controlled by a master program which coordinates the receiving of information from remote computers, the storing of received data and processed data base program, and the sending of signals or messages from the remote computer to local computers. Clearly, Bezick is disclosing bi-lateral communication between the terminals (local computers) and the game hub (remote computer).

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
